Jan. 4. MONK.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

KENTUCKY KERNELS

Carefully Collated and Concisely Chronicled.

Lexington and Louisville have each been assigned two additional mail carriers.

Gov. Willson refused to accept the resignation of Dr. J. G. Matthews as a member of the State Board of Health, but wrote and asked him to hold on a while.

Buyers at Franklin have bought 2,000,000 pounds of tobacco at an average of 7 1/2 cents, and the farmers of Simpson county ended the year in a very prosperous condition.

Fire at Sanders Thursday morning destroyed the residence of Mrs. James Harlow, who was so badly burned that she died just after her rescue. She was widow of a Mexican war veteran aged about 80 years.

M. C. Norman, magistrate of Boone county for 20 years, died at Union Thursday last and Magistrate Hubert of Kenton county, died the same day, so the Governor will have two vacancies to fill.

After a three-days examining trial Frank Prater and Fred Prater were held over to the Carter Circuit Court in the sum of $10,000 bail each on the charge of killing of Grant and Steve Stamper, Christmas eve.

At Prestonsburg Wednesday night of last week Geo. Hunt was instantly killed and his brother, Wayne, seriously wounded by Moses Martin, a lad 20 years old. Martin escaped to the hills and has not been arrested.

The Missouri Pacific railroad has compromised the damage suit for the death of Fred Story by the payment of $3,500, together with all cost. On July 2, 1908, Fred Story, whose home was in Simpson county was killed in a head-on collision at Knobnoster, Mo.

Chas. Schwab, the great steel magnate, says that Kentucky with her 16,000 square miles of coal lands rivals all the coal of Europe and that the coking coal of Eastern Kentucky is in every way equal to that of the Connellsville district in Pennsylvania.

The 20-round boxing bout scheduled to come off at the Lexington opera house Thursday night last was stopped before Marvin Hart, of Louisville, and Mike Schreck, of Cincinnati, appeared on the stage. Over 4000 people were in the city to witness the event.

John Davis, 82 years of age, a well-to-do farmer, is dead at his home in Pealed Oak, Bath county, after an illness of two months' duration, of a complication of diseases. He leaves a wife and one daughter, Miss Liddie. He was an old Federal soldier and drew a pension.

At a stormy meeting of the City Council in Maysville the saloon license ordinance was passed increasing the tax to $1,000. There were twenty-five saloon licenses granted, two wholesale liquor licenses and one druggist license. The ordinance does not go into effect until January, 1910.

The Democratic primary election held in the Twenty-fifth Judicial district Thursday last between Judge Jas. M. Benton, present incumbent, and Hon. J. Smith Hays, resulted in an easy victory for Judge Benton, who carried every precinct in the four counties of Madison, Jessamine, Powell and Clark, but two.

The wound Ed Fox, an accused night rider of Lyon county, accidentally inflicted on himself proved fatal. While returning with his wife from a neighbor's house to his home Christmas eve, Fox, it is said, was flourishing a pistol when it was discharged, the bullet entering Fox's stomach. He was expected to be a witness for the Commonwealth in the night rider cases.

The People's Bank, incorporated as successor to the bank of same name, which was a branch of Citizens' Bank, of Brodhead, opened for business at Mt. Vernon Thursday in its splendid new $50,000 building. It starts with a capital of $20,000 and deposits to the amount of $40,000. U. G. Baker is president and M. B. Salin, cashier. Mt. Vernon has two banks, both solid institutions.

It seems that the troubles of the presidents of the two defunct banks in Owensboro will never end. James H. Parrish, president of the Owensboro Saving Bank and Trust Company, and T. S. Anderson, president of the Daviess County Bank and Trust Company, were indicted by the grand jury Thursday afternoon on charges of having obtained money under false pretenses.

You May Need It

Ask your doctor about the wisdom of your keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, ready for colds, coughs, croup, bronchitis. If he says it's all right, then get a bottle of it at once. Why not show a little foresight in such matters? Early treatment, early cure.

Many a boy is called dull and stupid, when the whole trouble is due to a lazy liver. We firmly believe your own doctor will tell you that an occasional dose of Ayer's Pills will do such boys a great deal of good. They keep the liver active.

THE HERALD.

Robert M. Cecil, of Stillwater, visited his sister, Aunt Nancy Swango, one night last week.

Blair McLin, of Jackson, came in Tuesday and has been visiting his brother, R. J. McLin, of this place.

Buford Nickell, above Daysboro, a few days since opened a vein of clear clean coal measuring 42 inches.

Miss Susie Long will close her school in a few days, when she will go to Hiram College, Ohio, to take a course there.

Say, if you are behind with your subscription don't you think it is about time to pay up? We don't want to dun you.

Drs. Nickell and Stamper paid Winchester a flying visit last week, going down Tuesday and returning Friday evening.

John and Clayborne Johnson, of Talega, were guests of their kinsmen, H. H. Swango and family, from Sunday until Tuesday.

J. E. Goodwin, dentist, is located at the Cecil House for a few days and is prepared to do first class work on the guarantee plan.

Misses Faley Long, Lula Nickell and Virginia Day, left Saturday for Cannel City, where they were guests of Mrs. Everett Bach.

Mrs. Lee Caskey has the thanks of the editor and better seven-eighths for a lump of nice souse, and she sure knows how to make it

Doc Stamper was in town Monday to bring his son, Leonard, and his niece, Miss Evalina, Joe Stamper's daughter, to the Academy.

Mrs. W. T. Caskey, who has been confined to her bed about three weeks with some head and throat trouble, is able to be out again.

The many friends of Taylor Day will be glad to learn that in all probability he will be at home in a few weeks and take charge of his affairs.

W. B. Johnson having resigned the Board of Trustees of Hazel Green at a meeting held Tuesday night appointed Ellsworth Lacey town marshal.

John W. Craven has been employed by the Cumberland Pipe Line Co. to take up all recent cases of damage, and has entered upon the work.

Miss Florence Miller, who spent the holidays with homefolks at Louisville, has returned and resumed her duties as instructor at Hazel Green Academy.

Frank Trimble, of South Elkhorn, Franklin county, and a son of ex-Congressman South Trimble, of the Ashland district, has been visiting relatives here for a week past.

The regular meeting of the C. W. B. M. will be held at the residence of Mrs. E. M. Russell, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Hines will be the leader and all are invited. The subject for discussion is "What the C. W. B. M. has accomplished."

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, health and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless consumption," writes W. R. Lipscombs, of Washington, N. C. "He took all kinds of remedies and treatment from several doctors, but found no help till he used Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. He is a well man today." It's quick to relieve and the surest cure for weak or sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Cough and Colds, Bronchial, La Grippe, Asthma and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all dealers.

The town board met Monday night and resolved henceforth to strictly enforce the town ordinances. The town lock-up was ordered to be put in first class condition, and hereafter all who are fined and do not pony up the cash will be incarcerated in that bastille at night and work on the streets during the day until the fine shall have been paid. The Board is determined to put down all forms of lawlessness, and calls upon all good citizens to aid them.

President Helps Orphans.

Hundreds of orphans have been helped by the President of The Industrial and Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this Institution for nine years. It has proved a most excellent medicine for Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. We regard it as one of the best family medicines on earth." It invigorates the vital organs, purifies the blood, aids digestion, creates appetite. To strengthen and build up thin, pale, weak children or run-down people it has no equal. Best for female complaints. Only 50c at all dealers.

Fred Haddix and his dog last Sunday morning killed an otter measuring three and a half feet from end of nose to the end of back bone. He has the skin stretched and anticipates a fine price for it. It is the only otter ever captured in this immediate section.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 15, 1908. Editor HERALD, Hazel Green, Ky. You will find enclosed $1.00 to pay for THE HERALD from Oct. 18, 1908, up as far as it goes. Please change my address from Mercerville to Trenton, N. J., R. F. D. 3. Yours truly, Mrs. LIZZIE ROEDER

Aunt Jude Wills, who makes her home with Sebron Trimble, and who fell and hurt her hip and back on the night of the Dec. 15, suffered terribly for a while, but under treatment of Dr. G. M. Center, has so improved that she feels better than for a year past.

Miss Pearl Troy, who has been visiting in Jackson for several weeks past, returned home Friday evening, and with her running mate, Miss Nancy Mapel, is now prepared to trim ladies' hats and do other things to enhance the beauty of our beautiful girls. Call upon her and see.

Some man who owns land and could muster up a little public spirit and energy could make a good sum of money and at the same time increase the population of our little town if he would build some neat three to five room cottages. He could rent or sell them without trouble and either way have a nice income. Who will take hold and attend to it?

Inadvertently we last week failed to mention the visit of a young lady to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kash, where she is a most welcome guest and the apple of Lucille's eye. Indeed the latter thinks she is the prettiest little baby in the land, and their papa thinks he now has two of the prettiest girls in Kentucky. Dr. A. C. Nickell was master of ceremonies, and the mother is doing well.

Rheumatism Recipe.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable, though simple and harmless, prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling if any, diminishes with each dose until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

Don't bring a lot of old clippings to an editor and tell him they will do very well to fill up with, but bring him a cabbage and spare ribs. He can fill up better on them.

FIGHTING THE "BAD MEN" OF THE PLAINS

BY BUFFALO BILL
FROM "TRUE TALES OF THE PLAINS"

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY WILLIAM F. CODY

I HAVE often been asked for stories about the "bad men" of the west in the early days. I am going to tell you of my first "run in" with the worst kind of white men that then infested the frontier. These were horse thieves. And horse stealing in those days was a crime that came close to ranking with cold blooded murder.

"I found a grizzly bear skin, or rather, one of my sisters wanted it for a rug. I had promised as soon as I should have time to get her one, for even in those times a big grizzly could not be shot in one's doorway. It meant a long trip through the hills and more than a little danger."

After shooting a bear and skinning him I started back, but the going was hard. My sword I saw I couldn't hope to get back to camp that night. So I looked about for a good, sheltered spot to camp. Just then my horse whinnied. His call was answered from a hollow just behind the creek bed along which I was riding. I dismounted, followed him and, ride in hand, went on to my camp.

"I was hidden in a little gulch, were about twenty horses. They weren't rounded. Looking around in the dusk I saw a dozen about a hundred yards up the hill. Lights appeared through the cracks. I crept up to learn who was there."

I knocked on the blanket door. The yellow light had been at once. Then I heard a faint creak sharp clicks. That meant the loading of rifles or revolvers. I began to wonder what company I had stumbled into. Before I could move back some one called:

"Who's there?"

"A friend and a white man," I replied.

The door opened, and a big, ugly looking fellow stepped forth and said: "Come in."

I accepted the invitation with some degree of fear and hesitation, which I endeavored to conceal, as I thought it was too late to back out and that it would never do to weaken at that point, whether they were friends or foes. Upon entering the dugout my eyes fell upon eight as rough and villainous looking men as I ever saw in my life. Two of them I instantly recognized as teamsters who had been driving in Lew Simpson's train a few months before and had been discharged.

They were charged with the murdering and robbing of a ranchman, and, having stolen his horses, it was supposed that they had left the country. I gave them no signs of recognition, however, deeming it advisable to let them remain in ignorance as to who I was. "It was a hard crowd, and I concluded the sooner I could get away from them the better it would be for me. I felt confident that they were a band of horse thieves."

"Where are you going, kid, and who's with you?" asked one of the men, who appeared to be the leader of the gang.

"I am entirely alone. I left Horse-shoe Station this morning for a bear hunt, and, not finding any bears, I had determined to camp out for the night and wait till morning," said I. "and just as I was going into camp a few hundred yards down the creek I heard one of your horses whinnying, and then I came to your camp."

"Where's your horse?" demanded the boss thief.

"I left him down at the creek," I answered.

They proposed going after the horse, but I thought that would never do, as it would leave me without any means of escape, and I accordingly said in a calm voice: "I'll lead you to the track. Captain, I'll leave my gun here and go down and get my horse and come back and stay all night."

But my clever little game did not work at all, as one of the desperadoes spoke up and said:

"Jim and I will go down with you after your horse, and you can leave your gun here all the same, as you'll not need it."

"All right," I replied, for I could certainly have done nothing else.

"Come along," said one of them, and together we went down the creek and soon came to the spot where my horse was tied. One of the men unhitched the animal and said, "I'll lead the horse."

"Very well," said I. "I've got a couple of sage hens here. Lead on."

I picked up the sage hens which I had killed a few hours before and followed the man who was leading the horse, while his companion brought up the rear. The nearer we approached the dugout the more I dreaded the idea of going back among the villainous outlaws. My first plan of escape having failed, I now determined upon another. I had both of my revolvers with me, the thieves not having thought it necessary to search me. It was now quite dark, and I purposely dropped one of the sage hens and asked the man behind me to pick it up. While he was bending for it on the ground I quickly pulled out one of my Colt's revolvers and struck him a tremendous blow on the back of the head, knocking him senseless to the ground. I then instantly wheeled around and saw that the man ahead, who was only a few feet distant, had heard the blow and had turned to see what was the matter, his hand upon his revolver. We faced each other at about the same instant, but before he could fire, as he tried to do, I shot him dead in his tracks. Then, jumping on my horse, I rode down the creek as fast as possible, through the darkness and over the rough ground and rocks.

The other outlaws in the dugout, having heard the shot which I had fired, knew there was trouble, and they all came rushing down the creek.

"I shot him dead in his tracks."

I suppose by the time they reached the man whom I had knocked down that he had recovered and hurriedly told them of what had happened. They did not stay with the man whom I had shot, but came on in hot pursuit of me. They were not mounted and were making better time down the rough mountain than I was.

At last they came so near that I saw that I must abandon my horse. I jumped to the ground and gave him a hard slap with the butt of one of my revolvers, which started him on down the valley, while I scrambled up the mountain side. I had not ascended more than forty feet when I heard my pursuers coming closer and closer. I quickly hid behind a large pine tree, and in a few moments they all rushed by me, being led on by the rattling footsteps of my horse, which they heard ahead of them. Soon they began firing in the direction of the horse, as they no doubt supposed I was seated on his back. As soon as they had passed me I climbed farther up the steep mountain, and, knowing that I had given them the slip and feeling certain I could keep out of their way, I at once struck out for Horse-shoe Station, which was twenty-five miles distant. I had very hard traveling at first, but upon reaching lower and better ground I made good headway, walking all night and getting into the station just before daylight, footsore, weary and generally played out.

I immediately waked up the men of the station and told them of my adventure. Slade himself happened to be there, and he at once organized a party to go out in pursuit of the horse thieves.

We had a brisk ride and arrived in the immediate vicinity of the thieves' rendezvous at about 10 o'clock in the morning. We approached the dugout cautiously, but upon getting in close proximity to it we could discover no horses in sight. No one was inside, and the general appearance of every thing indicated that the place had been deserted; that the birds had flown. Such indeed proved to be the case.

Among one of my earliest acquaintances was a young man, older than myself, who was destined to become famed in frontier history, while at the same time legendary gossip has caused his career to be somewhat misunderstood owing to his varied character. This was James B. Hickok, who, although his name was James, will live in song and story as "Wild Bill." While probably no man in western history had so many notches on his gun, it may be said that no man recorded often in defending right, enforcing law and dealing justice.

In our early youth we were associated in many adventures on the plains in Indian warfare, wagon trailing, hunting and trapping, and we happened to be on the same side of the fence when the civil war between the north and the south left the plains almost alone to the red man.

"Wild Bill" soon became one of the most noted men in the confidence of the Union generals in the extreme southwest. He was a magnificent specimen of manhood and one of the most deadly shots with rifle or pistol that ever lived. In his enthusiasm as a Union spy he made a detour around, down into Texas and back to southwest Missouri and joined the Texans under an assumed name and accepted service as a Confederate spy, consequently giving himself the double danger of a spy's fate. Therefore by this means he became of immense service to the Union forces.

For many months he was confidential secret service agent for the Confederate forces under General Price in an invasion of Kansas, and in one battle while among their advance guard he saw a moment of which he thought the Union general should be informed. He therefore made a dash from the rebel to the opposing lines. His action was so sudden that the southerners thought his horse had become unruly. The audacity of his movements did not draw on them for a few moments, when, with yell, a squad took up hot pursuit. Both armies watched in breathless suspense, but, always famed for picking superior mounts, he quickly distanced all save one, who followed close up behind him, firing several shots which whistled close to his ear. Just when Hickok's horse was compelled to vault a small creek he turned in his saddle and with his merriment dropped the gallant pursuer from his horse and rode safely into the Union lines. Here he delivered his information to General Pleasanton, which turned the tide of the day.

Probably the most noted event in his career was his single handed fight with Jacob McCandles and his gang of nine men at Rock Creek, western Kansas, while riding pony express in 1891. This was his first great fight while carrying his route, armed only with two Colt revolvers. He halted at Rock Creek Station to find the stock tender dead and his wife excited by his presence. As he approached she exclaimed:

"My heavens, Bill, McCandles and his men are in the neighborhood, or were this morning!"

This gang of bandits had been laying a trap for Hickok to get him out of the way. Rushing to the door to remount and get back, he saw several hands pop up out of the grass, and a bullet struck the door jamb. Jumping back and telling the lady to escape, he was fortunate to find a loaded rifle left by the husband which the McCandles gang did not think of, as they saw that Bill was armed only with six shooters. There were some railway and baggage between him and McCandles of a comical nature when McCandles and nine bandits rose and, with a yell, charged for the door. They depended on taking the chance of losing some of their men and made a quick charge. Bill's instructions were to me in such cases, "Will, always get the leader." This he did, as he fired straight at McCandles, the bullet catching him full in the heart, and he dropped instantly. By this time the desperadoes were close upon the cabin. Jumping aside, he emptied the revolvers through the cabin door. Four men fell dead, besides McCandles, at this stage of the game.

Although wounded with buckshot and bullet and struck over the head with a rifle that caused him to bleed at the mouth and nose, he still "stayed with 'em." At this time, as he told me himself, the cabin was filled with smoke, and anything he struck or hit was an enemy, and in the gloom probably they assisted him in their destruction. But with his faithful bowie knife he never faltered until all was quiet, calm and still, for he had struck savage blows, following the devils up one side of the room and down the other and into corners, striking and yelling until he felt sure that every one was down.

Hickok was wounded by three bullets and eleven buckshot and cut in thirteen places. It was six months before "Wild Bill" fully recovered from the results of what was one of the most thrilling exploits in border story—one that is not created by the romance, but is well authenticated—conflict killed ten men, men of the most desperate character.
